

Adobe PDF Downloadable Version of Article

Finland declared independence from Russia in 1917. Taking advantage of the revolutionary environment in Russia at the time, the Finnish White Guards expelled all communist. The armories left behind became the property of the new Finnish Republic. The Russian Model 1891 became the standard issue to Finnish troops. These rifles were not to the specifications required by the Finnish army so the Finnish m/39 was rebuilt upon Russian Model 1891 receivers and included new barrels, sights, and stocks.

These rifles saw action in Continuanace War against the Soviet Union. The tactics of the Finnish army depended upon smaller squads of attacking troops and the deployment of snipers.

After the Winter and Continuanace wars the Finn's had a new influx of Russian Model 1891/30 and never had to manufacture receivers.

This Finnish m/39 Mosin-Nagant is the one of the finest examples of the Mosin Nagant rifle. Incredible feats of accuracy with these rifles will make any shooter a true believer.

Surplusrifle.com's Printed Disassembly & Reassembly Manuals

Click Here for More Info!

Copyright 2003, 2004, 2005, 2006 © Jamie Mangrum

All material on web pages under the domains surplusrifle.com, surpluspistol.com, or surplusfirearm.com, and CD-ROMS produced by Surplusrifle.com, unless otherwise stated, are the property of Jamie Mangrum. These materials are protected by copyright and other intellectual property laws. Information received through this website may be displayed and printed for your personal, noncommercial use only. You may make copies of the materials available through this website, solely for your personal, noncommercial use, and only if you preserve any copyright or other notices contained in or associated with them. You may not sell the materials found on this website.

Copyright 2003, 2004, 2005 © Jamie Mangrum